town last Friday. A countryman It affords another example of their exand about a dozen chickens thrown across his horse. Both he and his horse had their eyes shut as they wended their way towards a small dog lying in the road asleep. They little dreamed the sad fate which awaited them. The horse came so near stepping on the dog that he awoke and bit the horse on the hind leg, whereupon the horse being suddenly aroused from his slumber, elevated his rear end and sent the man, meal and chickens in different directions. As soon as the countryman recovered his breath he started for the dog, but after trying in vain to catch him, returned to find his chickens loose, and he started his loose, and he s ted in pursuit of them, but as they scattered he gave up the chase and returned to find his horse had gone home, and that a cow had just gobbled up the last of his meal, as the sack had bursted in the fall. He started on foot for home swearing vengeance on the whole dog race.

"How long ago did you discover this principle in hygiene?"

"If you mean when did I stop bathing, about ten years ago. Not entirely, mind you. I take a light invigorator twice a year, just to keep my skin fresh, you know. WIG-WEARING IN EUROPE.

Commencement in France-Collection in the British Museum-Conservatism. [Chicago Times.]

The British museum contains the wigs of a large number of lord chancellors and lef justices. Its collection of wigs is very large. It contains one that is said to be more than 4,000 years old. It was obbe more than 4,000 years old. It was obtained in Egypt, and it is presumed that it was worn by one of the early kinga. Wigs, like that other useless institution, speculative philosophy, probably had their origin in the country of the pyramids. Wigs and speculative philosophy found their way from Egypt into Greece and Rome. Nenophon states that Astyages, king of the Medes, wore a wig on state occasions. Livy, Ovid, Juvenal, and Plutarch all mention with in their writings. The early church fathers condemned wigs, but after the church became a great power the bishops wore them.

The great modern revival of wigs commenced in France. Henry III of France lost his hair by sickness, and wore a wig to hide his baldness. It was made of his own hair or some that closely resembled it. He was so pleased with its appearance that he had wigs made of very long hair. His courtiers followed his example until finally all who attended court balls and receptions were wigs, some of which were receptions wore wigs, some of which were very costly. Under i ouis XIII wigs made of silk became fashionable. During the reign of his successor powdered wigs were worn, the curls of which often covered the shoulders and came more than half way down the back. Henry XV had a wig made that was entirely white, so that he might be distinguished from even the most illustrious of his subjects. His example, however, was quickly followed by the nobility of France, and wigs of pure white were worn generally at court

Wigs were introduced into England soon after they became fashionable in France. During the time of Queen Anne the noblemen, magistrates, b'shops, cabinet ministers, as well as all persons of wealth and quality, wore wigs. The pictures of nearly all the authors of this period represent them with wigs. The like is true of most persons of distinction down to the commencement of the present. down to the commencement of the present century. In 1:65 the "distressed peruke-makers" of England petitioned King George III for protection against the French manufacturers, who were crowding the markets with their wares and bringing down prices. bringing down prices.

Many Inglish wigmakers came to America during the colonial times and did a very flouishing business. Up to the period of the revolution wigs were very fashionable in this country. Indeed, they continued to be worn long after that period. The "Father of His Country," wore a wig, and so did very many of his personal and political friends. One of our historians states that most of the leading. historians states that most of the leading Federalists during the administrations of Washington and Adams were wigs. The anti-Federalists, or Democrats, however, declined to wear wigs unless they were bald, and as a consequence all barbers, hairdressers, and wigmakers belonged to the Federal party.

Our great Chief Justice Marshall, de clined to wear a wig, probably because he had a luxuriant growth of hair, caused, it is said, by going bareheaded in early life. His example has been followed by his successors on the national bench IN A PECK OF TROUBE.—There was only judges and lawyers now wear wigs in the British islands. Their continuing to came to town with a sack of meal treme conservatism. They are the last to hold on to old forms and styles of dress.

ANOTHER CASE.

East Point, Ga., April 2, 1884. My wife has been afflicted with a terrible form of Scrofula for over ten years. Physicians exhausted their skill, and numerous patent medicines were used without benefit. Her condition grew worse-her appe tite failed, attended with debility, emaciation falling out of the hair and a frightful breaking out of the skin. Her bones became very much diseased and painful (some calling it white swelling), with sleepless nights and a general feeling of horror, Some friend said that B, B, B, would cure her. I procured it and placed her upon its use, and to the utter astoni of all who knew her the recovery was rapid and complete. It acted as a powerful tonic, gave her a splendid appetite and acted upon the kidneys. A few bottles did the work The action of B. B. B. was decidedly quick, and the medicine cost but little. I advise my friends to use it as a blood purifier. Yours truly,

BLOOD POISON.

Mr. A. P. W., of Hampton, Ga., has recently emerged from one of the most remarkable cases of Blood Poison on record. His body and limbs had no less than four hundred small and limbs had no less than four hundred small ulcers—his bones tormented him with pains—his appetite failed—his kidneys presented frightful symptoms—and all doctors and 100 bottles of the most popular Blood Poison remedy failed to give him any relief. He secured B. B. B., the concentrated quick cure, and five bottles healed up the ulcers, relieved his pain, cured his kidneys, restored his appetite, and made him a healthy and happy man. Any one can secure his full name and correspond with him.
